In 1839, it became known as the Liberty Bell when it was used as a symbol by the abolitionists.

The last time it rang was on Washington's birthday in 1846, after which it was taken down.

And on the first minute of the bicentennial year in 1776, the Bell left Independence Hall for a glass-walled pavilion nearby.

Death and Taxes, What is The Myth, What is the Reality?

When I meet with clients to discuss their estate planning or when counseling a family after the passing of a loved one, the topic of taxes normally arises. Most clients assume that there will be a huge tax bill that needs to be paid, however, many clients are pleasantly surprised by their actual tax burden (or lack thereof).

The tax that strikes the most fear in people's hearts is the estate tax (i.e. the death tax). Over the past 20 years the number of estates that pay this tax has fallen dramatically. In fact, about 99.8% of estates pay NO estate taxes. Why? First, Ohio abolished its estate tax in 2013, and Ohio does not have an inheritance tax, which would be a tax on individuals receiving the monies. Next, the Federal government has set the estate tax exemption amount to $5.45 million, per person. What this means is that if you pass with total assets less than $5.45 million, you will pay no federal estate tax.

Another potential tax facing a family is capital gains. However, again, the capital gains tax is mostly all bark and no bite. First, capital gains are typically only imposed upon real estate and stock or brokerage accounts. Capital gains is a calculation whereby you take the current value of the asset and subtract from it what the asset was purchased for. As an example, if your home is worth $150,000 and you purchased it for $50,000, you have a capital gain of $100,000. If you decide to give this property to your child sometime before your death (possibly to avoid probate or a Medicaid spenddown), your child will have to pay a capital gains tax on that $100,000 when he or she ultimately sells it. However, if your child inherits the property upon your death, then the IRS wipes out the gain and no tax will be due (provided the property is sold relatively quickly).

The last tax that actually could be a detriment to your heirs is the income tax waiting to be paid on any tax deferred accounts. These types of account are usually a 401(k), traditional IRA or some annuities. When the holder passes, the income tax that you have been avoiding all these years will now come due. However, there are several good options that your beneficiaries may choose to minimize the taxes paid. But, in order to take advantage of these options, either an individual or a qualified trust must be made the beneficiary.

So, I'm sorry to tell you that in many cases the tax man (or woman!) may not come a calling upon your death. However, it is still a good idea to consult a qualified estate planning attorney or certified public accountant to discuss your particular estate in more detail.

Please be advised that this article is meant to target Ohio residents only. If you live outside Ohio, your state may have its own estate and/or inheritance tax. Please contact an attorney in your area.

Is There a Difference?

What is the relationship between the Czechs and Slovaks?

Czechs and Slovaks share a common Slavic heritage and speak distinct, but mutually intelligible, Slavic languages. Historically, both the Czechs and Slovaks were subjects of the Austro-Hungarian Empire for many centuries. The Czechs were under Austrian influences, while the Slovaks were under Hungarian. These differing spheres of influence helped to create two distinct Slavic cultures.

Who are the Bohemians and Moravians?

Bohemia and Moravia are historic regions that constitute the modern Czech Republic. Both Bohemians and Moravians have maintained close cultural and political ties and in fact were governed jointly for much of their history. Bohemia is the westernmost province of the Czech Republic and is its industrial heartland. Moravia lies to the east, where agriculture and light industry are most common.

What's the difference between a Slovak and a Slav?

In short, all Slovaks are Slavs, but not all Slavs are Slovaks. Slavs can be divided into three linguistic groups: the eastern Slavs (Russians, Belerussians, Ukrainians), the southern Slavs (Slovenes, Croats, Serbs, Macedonians, Bulgarians) and the western Slavs (Czechs, Slovaks, Poles, Lusatians).

LEOS JANACEK

Leos Janacek was born on July 3, 1854 in Hukvaldy, near Pribor in Moravia. He studied at the Organ Music Schools in Brno and Prague, and later at conservatories in Leipzig and Vienna. Leos founded an organ school, later transformed into a conservatory, in Brno. He became director of the music school and also served as a teacher, composer, theorist and conductor. Two of his operas are Liska, Bystrouska (The Little Vixen) and Vec Makropulos (The Makropulos Affair). In total, Janacek composed ten operas, as well as many other pieces for orchestra, chamber ensemble, piano and choral ensembles. Leos Janacek died on August 12, 1928, in Brno, Czech Republic.

THUN PORCELAIN

The very first porcelain on the European continent was produced in Germany. In 1794, the production of porcelain was Mastered in Western Bohemia.

Thun 1794 a.s. is the largest Czech porcelain manufacturer. It produces specific types of so-called hard porcelain with a firing temperature of 1,405 degrees Celsius. Their products are sold in more than forty countries around the world.

You Did Not Really Mean That

Many times, people use words incorrectly, saying one thing when they really mean something else. Here are a few examples:

Flesh out vs. Flush out

If you flesh something out, you are adding to it or building it up. If you flush something out, you are bringing it to light.

Regardless vs. irregardless

Regardless of how often we hear others say it, "irregardless" is not a real word. "Regardless" means without regard.

Could care less vs. Couldn't care less

If you could care less, that means it's possible for your level of concern to be lower. If you couldn't care less, it doesn't even register on your care-o-meter.

First come, first served vs. First come, first serve

If there's a limited supply of something and those who arrive earliest will get first dibs, it's first come, first served. Over time, it's become customary to drop the "d" from served, but that's not correct usage.

Doing good vs. doing well

To say that you are "doing good" implies you are doing noble deeds. The correct answer is, "I'm doing well, thank you."

Moot vs. mute

Moot describes something irrelevant. Mute means you are without speech or silent.

THE DIRT ON CREATION (A timely bit of humor)

One day a group of scientists decided that man had come a long way and no longer needed God. They picked a scientist to tell God they were done with Him.

The scientist walked up to God and said "God, we've decided that we no longer need you. We're to the point that we can clone people and do many miraculous things, so why don't you just get lost."

After the scientist was done talking, God said, "Very well, how about this. Let's say we have a person-making contest." The scientist replied, "O.K., great!"

But God added, "Now, we're going to do this just like I did back in the old days with Adam."

The scientist said, "Sure, no problem," and bent down and grabbed himself a handful of dirt.

God looked at him and said, "No, no, no. You go get your own dirt!"

Prayer for Independence Day

Dear God, as we celebrate today with fireworks and festivals, help us never to forget the reason for our joy. Help us remember that our rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness were signed into our heritage with the willing blood of American patriots. Most of all, help us remember that the rights of all people are more than words on a document, and that all people have rights because you have given us the dignity of human life. Grant freedom to all, and give us the strength to protect the rights of others. Amen.
